Public Offerings Book Two: The Price of a Life Bob LiVolsi

Kirkus Reviews .."A densely plotted thriller that churns out suspenseful scenes... Characters are refreshingly intricate. Protagonist Dave isn't a flawless hero; he seems to be an obsessive workaholic. The bad guys are even better." - Clue Award finalist for best thriller or mystery. (Book 1 of series) - Winner of the prestigious Writers League of Texas competition for best thriller. In Sierra Leone, Ebola, civil war and corruption have decimated the nation and its people. One out of four children will die before their fifth birthday. A child there with HIV is doomed. An HIV-positive child in America should live a full life. Unless you're Liv, Dave Clement's daughter... In The Price of a Life, Book Two in the Public Offerings series, the stakes in Book One (Birthright) escalate as young children become killers and Dave Clement's friends become his enemies. Ebola, malaria and civil war have de-stabilized Sierra Leone and criminal gangs again roam the bush country. Hamara Karanja's family and tribe face savage attacks and disease. The malaria vaccine project is jeopardized and Dave fights to save it and Hamara's people. His daughter's HIV continues to baffle doctors in Colorado, but Sheila Stratemeier, lead drug researcher inside the Aldrich, gives Dave and his family hope. But Claire McQuaid and the Aldrich are ruthless and Sheila is in their way. All the while, Dave remains oblivious to the plot as the clock ticks down to doomsday for his daughter, Liv, and his friends in Sierra Leone. Public Offerings won the prestigious Writers League of Texas manuscript contest for best thriller. In addition to the paperback version, it is also available as an ebook. This volume, Public Offerings Book Two: The Price of a Life, is the second installment in the series.
