Wannabe matchmaker Nana Vancy has donned her Cupid wings once again—this time for Dr. Della McGraw, the distant cousin of her pal Annabelle. Together with her partners in crime, Annabelle and Isabel, she concocts a clever plan to find Della her knight in shining armor. Their first stop? The local dog shelter.

When Jonah McIntosh rescues three old ladies and their narcoleptic dog, it's just the topper for his lousy day. But things start looking up when he finds himself in the company of the lovely veterinarian Della. There's just one teensy problem: he's allergic to dogs.

But Nana's convinced a happily ever after is in the cards. Can she work her magic once more—or is this one romance that's doomed before it's even begun?

Great conclusion to the series. Nana Vancy is at it again. Her friend Annabelle wants a happy ending for her cousin Della so Nana steps up with one of her plans. She and her friends go to the local animal shelter and adopt a couple dogs that Nana takes home with her. First she has to convince her husband to let her keep them (he's not a dog person) and then come up with a plan to get a man involved. Enter Jonah, who comes to their rescue and finds himself accompanying them to the vet's office. He is certainly interested in Della, but he has just come out of a relationship and doesn't want to get involved again. Della has also just finished a relationship, but there is no stopping Nana Vancy. Jonah and Della find themselves going out to eat together at her instigation. Then she comes up with a pet adoption event that she cons them into helping with. The biggest hurdle they have to overcome, though, is that Jonah is allergic to dogs. Every time he is around Della he starts to sneeze.

I loved both Della and Jonah. Della likes Jonah right away, but is honest that she isn't ready for a new relationship. I loved her reaction to the stories that Nana Vancy's family tell about her previous attempts and how she starts to see Nana's intentions. She finds that she really likes Jonah and that they have a lot in common. I really enjoyed seeing the way she tried so hard to make it so Jonah wasn't sneezing around her but nothing seemed to work.

Jonah was a sweetheart. I loved the way that he helped Nana Vancy with the dog even though he was allergic. He was at such a loss as to how to deal with Nana Vancy and the way she just steamrolled him into going out with Della, but he didn't really mind the push. He was so miserable when he was around her because of his allergies, but he was determined to push on through it because he liked Della so much. I had a suspicion of what the resolution of his allergy problem was going to be, but I loved the way it all worked out.

I love the way that Nana Vancy is always so sure of herself. She never seems to consider that she could be wrong about something and just barrels straight ahead. She certainly has a great relationship with her husband who knows exactly what she is like but doesn't seem to work too hard at trying to stop her. I absolutely loved the scene when she brought the dogs home with her.

Everything But A Dog is the sixth, and final, installment of the Everything But... Series. Hungarian grandma, Nana Vancy, has one last match to make before giving up interfering in her family and friends' lives. When she chooses Dr. Della McGraw as her next matchmaking endeavor, Nana adopts a couple of shelter dogs in order to make first contact with her mark. That decision not only allows her to entrap Jonah McIntosh into her web of well-intended deceit, it inspires Nana to form a new charity to match shelter dogs with their proper owners. Another type of matchmaking, and a project to keep her busy in the future. First, however, she needs to insure that an independent lady vet finds her happiness with an allergic lawyer.

This is a good ending to the series since it shows Nana, naturally, moving on to new projects. The only really negative thing about this storyline is that Nana goes in to adopt a dog purely on a whim. Not because she wants a dog, but so she can use it to get to Della. Any animal lover will tell you that this sort irresponsible decision making, in regards to pets, shouldn't be encouraged.

The Everything But...series are clean romances that are appropriate for adults and teens alike.

A joy

The Everything But... series has been a joy to read, and this sixth book is a very nice wrap up to the series. Engaging characters working their way to real love, and with dogs as well. Enjoy!

This novella is the last in the series. It was the only one I've read and I thought it recapped the history enough that it was a stand alone.

The matriarch of the family, and the story, is a Hungarian matchmaker who has a feeling about people. She adopts two dogs to meet a vet, the woman who is to be matched up, unknowing to her. She asks our heroine to describe the perfect man and she describes her dog. Enter our hero, the lawyer, who "saves" the old woman's dog, thus the introduction to the vet. The lawyer and the vet have a connection despite an allergy issue. Our famous matchmaker turns to matching shelter dogs with families.

I liked this book a lot more than I thought I would because frankly Nana Vancy sort of got on my nerves. But I LOVED Jonah & Della!

Super sweet romance between two likable characters, filled with humor and heart.
