This Love is book 6 in the Cowboys and Angels series- and what a fantastic series it is! Each book in the series, including This Love, was incredible and didn't disappoint.

Cord and Maebh's story was great. Cord has always been the single guy, the bad boy. Maebh is Irish and a good girl. I loved a few things about this book. One is Cord. He's such a single guy, a player, and I loved how he fell for Maebh. Another thing I loved is that Maebh is Irish. I am married to a man from Ireland and I loved that aspect of the book including the dialect that Kelly put in. I loved their interactions and thought they were sweet and also sexy. I also loved the family dynamic and the entire feel I got from this family and these characters.

This story had tons of emotions and made me feel so good. It's romance at its finest.

This is the sixth book in the series, and I would say that you really need to read them in order to get the full story and understand all of the family dynamics. We have seen the first times these two met in previous books, and so a fan would already know the issues which Cord has with Maebh and her new venture.

As each of the siblings has found their true love in previous books, we have enjoyed the ones left behind being both the teased and the teasers - the Smurf naming being a trend throughout the books for example. Cord is well aware of how his brothers have acted once they have found their woman, but he has no intention of going there, and has been doing a sterling job of working his way through the local single ladies. However Maebh has an effect on him that he does not want to acknowledge.

There are both some lovely humour and some quite hurtful moments as the two of them work out where their future lies and whether it really is together. Maebh has been burned before, so Cord's actions cause her more pain than was really warranted, but does cause them both to assess what is really important and what is not.

Be prepared for a fun story with a very romantic pairing, and plenty of excellent quality whiskey!

Emily says

Cord is a bachelor, he loves women, loves being free to have fun with them with zero attachment. Then he meets Maebh. Maebh is opening a restaurant not far from his bar and he is not pleased. Not to mention Maebh is a beauty that is unparalleled to the other women he has spent time with. However Maebh is not the type of girl to be a one night stand, she is the type of girl that screams commitment. Can Cord commit or will he let his own hangups stand in his way?

Was a bit more angstier than I thought it would be. Cord was kind of a jerk and sent so many mixed messages while Maebh was a bit of a contradiction. Overall good book but took awhile for the two characters to come together.

This Love is the sixth book in the Cowboys and Angels series. This series needs to be read in order to be completely understood and trust me you'll want to read about each and every Parker sibling!

Cord Parker has always considered himself the bachelor of the family. He's always been a manwhore. Never caring who he sleeps with. He's never wanted to end up like his brother's and get "smurfed". When he finds out a bar/restaurant is opening up across the street, he's furious. When he meets the owner, Meabh he can't explain why he's so drawn to her. He's worried about his business and so confused by his feelings. He realizes her bar won't destroy his, he relaxes but can't get the woman out of his thoughts. His family loves her, his sister's consider her a friend. He knows he can't hurt her but needs her like he needs his next breath. But is he worthy enough? For the first time in his life he regrets the decisions he's made in his part.

I absolutely love these Parkers. Watching Cord fall for Meabh was sweet and oh so sexy. Cord is so swoon worthy, ever Parker brother is, but something about Cord is just more and so worth the read! Meabh is from Ireland and Ms. Elliott keeps her in her Irish dialect throughout the book, even within the inner dialogue which seemed off at first but works perfectly the more you read. I am so sad this is almost the end but I can't wait for the next book!!

Cowboys and Angles continues in This Love by Kelly Elliott and oohhh it was sooo freaking good!!!

5 iScream "I love these Cowboys" Books Cones!!! I can not get enough of this bunch and I had such a wonderful afternoon reading This Love. It was sooo swoony and full of push and pull!!!

This Love was about Cord the bad boy, the boy with the reputation of one night stands. And then there is the lovely Maebh.. a beautiful Ireland girl. She is soo innocent, soo naïve. I just fell in love with her though. She may be my fav now..lol And to top it off, you gotta love a momma that loves to play matchmaker haha. It definitely makes for a Rom Com kind of a read!! I laughed me ass off at times...(read the book and you will know why I said ME) haha The only problem is, Cord is worried he was going to hurt her, he knows his bad boy was and truthfully, Maebh has reservations as well. She keeps hearing about how Cord loves the ladies and only hangs around for one night. But these two have such a huge pull to each other. So they decided to take a weekend break. Slow things down. But.....this is where that momma loves to get involved..soooo

Now you need to one click on release day. I can't tell you anything else..OMG each book I fall more and more for these Parker boys.

Ohh and one more thing..lol If you have been keeping up, you will get a glimpse of all of the family when reading This Love..it is one of my favorite things, when an author gives you snippets of the past characters and goodness This Love is full of the Parker family..freaking loved it!

Thank you for another great book Kelly!!!

4.5 Stars!!

“A guy like Cord Parker was bound to break me heart. He was a player, but damn it all to hell, the way he looked at me sometimes made me quiver with desire.”

“You, Cord Parker, have fallen for a girl. You’ve been Smurfed.”

“Her heart was the purest I’d ever known.”

When it comes to sweet and sexy romances, I just can’t get enough of the Cowboys and Angels Series by Kelly Elliott. These stories are rich, full of heart and know just how to knock a girl off her feet and make her swoon. This Love is the latest story to runaway with my heart.

This Love is a heartwarming and sweet romance. It’s the kind of romance that just want to curl up with a blanket and put up a do not disturb sign. This story will give you all the feels and will make your heart soar.

From the moment we’re introduced to Cord and Maebh, you get a sense that their story is going to rock your world. The pull between the two of them is instant and has you dying for more. Cord is the sweetest guy, but he’s the kind of guy your mom always warned you about. His looks and charm are lethal. He is the very definition of a player and isn’t going to settle down anytime soon. All that seems to be working until Maebh enters the picture. With her amazing accent, beauty and innocence, Cord doesn’t stand a chance. Despite just how opposite these two were, they were like magnets. Wild horses couldn’t keep these two away from one another. Their back and forth. Their push and pull. All of it left me in anticipation and excitement for the possibilities yet to come.

I had a lot of fun watching Cord and Maebh navigate their way through things. Both feeling things neither one of them ever anticipated. Both wanting to do things right because they knew what they were feeling was special. Their story was just so incredibly sweet. It left my heart aching and dying for more. I just couldn’t get enough of these two and was excited to see just how their story was going to play out. Now, of course you know, their journey to happily ever after wouldn’t be without its share of ups and downs, but these two had a connection worth fighting for and I couldn’t help but root for a happy ending for these two.

Once again, Kelly Elliot has blown me away. She’s written a beautiful, heartwarming story that has captured my heart and has given me all the feels. This series just keeps getting better and better. I didn’t think it would be possible to fall more deeply in love with a set of characters and their family, but this author just keeps proving me wrong. Each new book is like an exciting episode of my favorite television show. While the book may be new, there are so many familiar faces and it honestly just feels like coming home.

I loved every moment of This Love. It hit all the marks for a good romance and certainly had me swooning. This Love is filled with a lot of heart and emotion. With just the right amount of drama and angst, you'll find yourself devouring the pages just as quickly as I have. And don't even get me started on the ending!! All I'm gonna say is the stage has been set for the final book in this series and I just know my mind is going to be blown. So, you can be sure that I am going to be counting down the minutes until I get that seventh book in my hands.....

MANWHORE +VIRGIN

Stepping back, I smiled and she swayed a little.

"Holy crap. Best kiss of my life. You must have kissed a lot of women to get that damn good."

I winked. "You could say that, darlin'. Glad to hear you liked it."

Turning on her heels, she rushed back to the table where all her friends were laughing and whistling. I turned to see Amelia, Wade, and...fuck my life...Maebh. They stood at the opposite end of the bar, looking at me.

"Looking for another slut to kiss?" Amelia hissed. I jerked back like I'd been slapped in the face.

"What?" My sisters had never had a problem with my flirting habits before, so why was my baby sister giving me a hard time?

"Do you do this often?"

My question was like a slap to his face. He stepped back quickly, his hand pushing through his dark hair.

"I saw you kissing that girl, and I've seen you before bringing girls to a back room in your bar. I'm not like those women, Cord. I'm not going to spread me legs so you can shag me and then walk away. You don't even act like you like me half the time."

What in the hell is going on with me? I wasn't the one-lady type of guy. I liked women. Lots of women. Seven days a week of women. I couldn't honestly see me settling down with just one.

One of Mitchell's friends said he'd overheard some girl at the bar say I had a golden dick after

I fucked her.

And like that, she walked out of the room. I knew she'd heard rumors of my man-whoring ways. Hell, she'd even admitted to seeing me take women in the back of the bar, but for her to see that T-shirt did something to me. It was like we were bragging about all the women I'd fucked—and fucked—over the years.

The last time I was on a swing, Savannah Hughes was wrapped around me, fucking the shit out of me.

“Are you always so crude when describing sex?”

“Yes. Because that's what I do, Maebh. I fuck.”

I was ruined.

Maebh O'Sullivan had just ruined me for other women...she'd ruined me forever.

I could count on my hand the women I'd gone down on.

Kylie Burks, my fuck buddy in high school and college, was the one I'd done it to the most. She'd taught me how to lick, when to suck, how many fingers to put inside.

“Use protection,” Tripp said sternly.

“What the hell, bro. I've never forgotten a condom.”

Tripp laughed. “Trust me, you'll almost forget. Trust me.”

“No way. I've always housed the hose before I curl the toes.”

“What?”

“I cover my stump before I hump.”

“Jesus.”

Smiling, I kept going. “When they go into heat, I package my meat. I wrap it in foil before I check the oil.”

“Please stop.”

“No glove, no love.”

Right as I stepped up on the sidewalk, a familiar face was in front of me. My feet stopped instantly.

“Cord Parker! Oh, my God! I was just coming to the bar to say hi!”

Kylie Burks.

The only other woman I had ever had sex with more than three times, was standing in front of me. My eyes took her in. She had changed some, but she was still a beautiful woman. Not as beautiful as Maebh, but I certainly saw why I had no problems going back for more.

“Kylie, holy shit. What are you doing in Oak Springs?”

Cord and Maebh have, at the beginning, the wrong impressions of one another and what they can be to one another. Cord thinks he's not the kind of man who can be with just one woman, although he is starting to rethink his history and the number of women he has been with. And, Maebh thinks he feels nothing for her, that the attraction she feels toward him is one-sided and destined to go nowhere.

Add in a few meddling family members, and these 2 start to see that there is a lot more there than they thought, and that just maybe they are a match that is meant to be. If they hadn't already started to figure this out on their own, they would have by the time the family was done with them.

I loved the juxtaposition of their pasts and their experiences, the differences in their lives and the ways in which they were similar. I loved this, and how they not only were able to merge their differences, but to let them bring them together.

The only issue I had was there were a couple of times I thought there was a little bit of drama that was overdone, both in the actions of the characters and the reactions of the main characters in the story. I am not going to give it away, but I do think it's likely (even if you don't feel the same way) that you will know who I am talking about when you read this title and get to the scenes.

The writing in this was also strong overall. There were a couple of places where I felt that it was a little overdramatic, but for the most part I enjoyed it. I recommend this title.

Oh My Gawd....this story melted my heart and had me falling head over heels for Cord and Maebh. This is the sixth book in the Cowboy & Angels series and one of my favorites! Cord is one of the two last remaining single Parker men and plans to stay that way.....or so he thought! He loves women and can have his choice with that sexy as sin, panty-melting smile but what happens when one green eyed sexy Irish vixen comes to town....his world is turned upside down!!! Maebh is the sweet, sexy owner of the new restaurant in town and wants the one thing she knows she shouldn't.....Cord Parker! This series is fun, sexy and sinfully addicting so don't miss out!

~ 5 You've Been Smurfed Stars ~

This Love was another great addition to the Cowboy and Angels Series by Kelly Elliott. I will always read a book by this author especially if it has some swoon worthy cowboys!!!!

What happens when a playboy cowboy meets his match?? Read This Love to find out how Cord and Maebh navigate these rocky waters.

I was so excited to read Cord's book because I wanted to see what Kelly had planned for this playboy bachelor. I have to be honest I did want to smack him around a couple times and tell him to wake up, but I was so happy it didn't take him too long to realize what he had right in front of him. I also LOVED Maebh....I thought her personality was the perfect match for Cord. I think the only thing that I wasn't too thrilled with was the direction the storyline took towards the end (about 78% in) I thought it was kind of predictable and I wish it wouldn't have been in there. But there always has to be some kind of drama to keep us on our toes. I still thoroughly enjoyed this story.

As with all the past books in this series, This Love is not really a standalone novel. Yes each book is about a new couple but this all revolves around the Parker family and the main story keeps going from story to story. This is a series I would definitely recommend reading in order to enjoy the full effect the Parker Siblings have. This story is told in Dual POV and I thought the flow and pace of the story worked well. I always get swept up in Kelly's books.

This Love is the 6th book in this series and it follows Cord and Maebh's story. Cord owns and operates the local bar in town and isn't all that thrilled to find out someone new is coming to town to open an Irish pub/restaurant. That is until he gets a look at the new person....Maebh. Maebh used to live in Ireland with her father, who owns a whiskey distillery. She has always dreamt of opening an Irish restaurant in America. Drawn to a small town in Texas because it is linked to her mom, she picks this town. Instantly making new friends and finding everyone friendly all except one person..... Cord. Can Maebh and Cord find a happy medium? What happens when Cord realizes Maebh isn't out to run his business out of town?? Can they find their HEA?? Read This Love to find out.

I again enjoyed seeing all of the Parker siblings in this story and the people who they fell in love with. This family truly knows how to bring the comic relief to this series. Aunt Vi will have you rolling in your seat with laughter. I hope we get to see more of Aunt Vi and Maebh's father ;) in the last book of this series. Trevor is the last sibling to get a book and I am looking forward to seeing him redeem himself after some of the things that happened in this book.

If you are a fan of family saga series, this is one you don't want to miss!!!

Readers who have been with the Parker crew from the beginning of Kelly Elliott's Cowboys and Angels series are more than familiar with Cord's extracurricular activities as well as his desire to remain single despite his brothers and sisters finding their happily ever afters, reveling in the love and commitment that's found their way into their lives. Every time the discussion of being a one-woman kind of guy came up in the past, Cord adamantly denied his desire for that type of relationship and took things even further by stating unequivocally that he would never be Smurfed, and with every flirty look, lewd word, and storage room hook up, Cord stayed true to his self-professed manwhoring ways, making it quite impossible for anyone to believe, especially his brothers, that there was a woman who could bring Cord to his knees.

I have to be honest...I didn't know how Kelly Elliott was going to win me over when it came to Cord finally falling for THE woman. I had my doubts that she could realistically illustrate Cord's transformation, but after finishing Cord and Maehb's story, I can wholeheartedly say that I'm so glad that Elliott proved me wrong, and while there is a bit of the 'too soon' vibe, the steps these Cord and Maehb take to work through their fears and give themselves to one another despite the risk was illustrated beautifully.

The fact that Cord and Maehb have been circling each other since she arrived in Texas lays credence to the fact that they've been slowly developing confusing feelings for one another, which is further illustrated by their reactions and their inability to get the other one out of their every thought. It's more than clear that Cord's past with women is a point of contention but the only way that anything could work between Cord and Maehb is if they figure out a way to move beyond the notches on his bedpost and focus on how it will be the first time Cord gives more than his body to a woman and that is a significant difference that they both need to realize as they move forward and try to build something lasting between them.

I do have to say that I felt like Maehb's character was a bit underdeveloped, and I'm not sure if it's because I already knew some about Cord due to his presence in all of the earlier books or if it's because Cord's the character who needed to change who he was, but I felt like I didn't really know much about Maehb, except for the pertinent details of her life in Ireland, her dad, and her business. She is such a unique and beautiful Irish lass, and I just wanted to understand who she was and why she was as emotional as she was throughout the course of the text.

The fact that Maehb and Cord are in uncharted territory when it comes to an intimate relationship - one with commitment, strong feelings, and passion - makes it interesting to see how they react to each other and how their feelings translate through their touches, their words, and their need for one another's body, heart, and soul.

This love that Maehb and Cord create is worth changing for...this love is one that guides them into the unknown and allows them to hold on despite the fear and anxiousness that comes with something so new. This love between them is everything and I loved watching it grow and witnessing these two feel strong enough to take the biggest risks of their lives.

Trevor's story is up next and I'm anxious to see if Trevor's mistakes can be rectified or if Scarlett moves on without him, feeling like she no longer has a choice or a chance to be what she wants and needs to be in his life.

This is Maebh and Cord's story.

I really liked Maebh, she was sweet and strong and I ended up liking Cord once he came to his senses but I'm not sure if I enjoyed their love story. I did believe in his love and devotion for her but his inner thoughts made me roll my eyes quite a few times. Everyone knew that he was a Hoe with a capital H but the constant mention of his sexual past and the things he had done with OW got tiresome pretty fast. Like, I get it, you're a bad boy who loves to get laid but was it really necessary to mention it every single chapter? I'm guessing the author wanted us to notice the drastic change in him after he met Maebh but the way it was done didn't work for me.

Again, there's no epilogue but hopefully the next book which is the final in the series will give us a good closure for this couple and the rest of the Parkers.

“I saw you kissing that girl, and I’ve seen you before bringing girls to a back room in your bar. I’m not like those women, Cord. I’m not going to spread me legs so you can shag me and then walk away. You don’t even act like you like me half the time.”

I knew I should walk away. A guy like Cord Parker was bound to break me heart. He was a player, but damn it all to hell, the way he looked at me sometimes made me quiver with desire.

What in the hell was happening to me? I couldn’t bring myself to have sex with anyone, and I really needed to figure out a way to get my head clear. When I closed my eyes, I saw her smile. Her emerald green eyes staring back. This was not good. Not good at all. I wanted Maebh like I’d never wanted any other woman in my entire life.

I had almost said I hadn’t met a man I wanted to give meself to until Cord. But I knew that would never happen. He may have wanted one night, but I wanted the rest of me life.

Me heart ached thinking of Cord wanting in a girl’s knickers for sex only. It actually made me stomach hurt.

What in the hell is going on with me? I wasn't the one-lady type of guy. I liked women. Lots of women. Seven days a week of women. I couldn't honestly see me settling down with just one.

Now it was only one woman who consumed my every waking and sleeping thoughts. Even thinking about getting laid by someone else made my stomach revolt. And I knew a lot of my problems were because I hadn't gotten laid in weeks. Hell, not since the first time I laid eyes on her. Fuck. My. Life.

One of Mitchell's friends said he'd overheard some girl at the bar say I had a golden dick after I fucked her. Sighing, my mother tossed the T-shirt at me and shook her head. I'd never seen her look so disappointed in me.

"Keep the jokes outside the house, boys. I need to go calm your mother down." We hung our heads. For the first time in my adult life, I hated that I'd slept with so many women, and worse yet, that I knew my mother knew.

"It's a stupid joke, Maebh. That's all." She shrugged. "I don't mind. Makes no difference to me." I knew she'd heard rumors of my man-whoring ways. Hell, she'd even admitted to seeing me take women in the back of the bar, but for her to see that T-shirt did something to me. It was like we were bragging about all the women I'd fucked—and fucked—over the years. This had officially become the worst fucking birthday of my life.

"They like to give each other a hard time." I smiled. "I'm not bothered by it." It was a lie, but I didn't need to let Cord's mother know I was smitten with her manwhore of a son.

Jesus, I wanted her more than I'd ever wanted another woman in my entire life. The fact that she was a virgin and deserved someone who wasn't a whoring prick wasn't lost on me, but I didn't care. I was a greedy bastard.

I hadn't laughed this much in a long time. The last time I was on a swing, Savannah

Hughes was wrapped around me, fucking the shit out of me. The memory tainted the moment, and I started to slow down. Guilt ripped through my body. Maebh laughed harder. “Giving up, Parker?”

Maebh was the type of girl who deserved more than a one-night fucking. A man should make love to her. I don’t think I’d ever once made actual love to a woman. Hell, half the time I took them from behind just so I could fuck them as fast and as hard as I could. Prick.

“Fuck, Maebh. I’m not used to feeling this way about a woman. I don’t know how to court someone. I’ve never dated a girl before, and this is confusing as fuck.”

“Will you be patient with me? I’ve never done this before, but I know I could never walk away from you. Something happened when I first saw you. I haven’t been myself since that first day you smiled at me.”

“I don’t deserve you,” I mumbled, knowing that every word was true. I didn’t deserve her, but hell if I wasn’t going to do everything in my power to change that. “If you do decide to give yourself to me, I swear to God I’ll treasure you and prove that I am worthy of you for as long as you’ll have me.”

My past hookups were starting to bother me, and I knew it was because of Maebh. The last thing I’d ever really want was for her to know exactly how much of a manwhore I’d been my entire life.

I’d dry humped plenty of women, but Maebh grinding into my cock with us both fully clothed—and right the fuck in the middle of the lake—was hot as hell.

Plenty of women had jerked me off, but Maebh touching me felt different. Like I knew I’d never want another woman touching me again...except for her.

“I don’t think I even came that fast with my very first blowjob.” Hearing him say that made an ache build in me chest. I knew other women had done that to Cord. Thinking it and hearing him say it were two different things. Drawing back, I went to get off his lap, feeling me moment of happiness disperse. “Shit, I’m sorry. I didn’t mean to say that.”

I could count on my hand the women I’d gone down on. Kylie Burks, my fuck buddy in high school and college, was the one I’d done it to the most. She’d taught me how to lick, when to suck, how many fingers to put inside. She would have slapped the shit out of me had I tried to kiss her after oral sex. Neither one of us was interested in a relationship, but we liked to fuck each other. A lot. Kissing was something we didn’t really do. Not sure why, we just didn’t. But I certainly kissed her pussy a lot. Thank you, Kylie, for letting me learn on you.

“It’s me! Trent! Dude, tell me you haven’t forgotten all those crazy nights! The booze, the girls, the good times.” I could almost feel Maebh stiffen. It wasn’t a secret that I had slept with a lot of women, and I knew Maebh knew that. She didn’t have to hear about it, though.

I had never in my life slept next to a woman. Never had a woman in my bed. Not even for a quick fuck. I fucked in their beds, got up and left. I’d rolled around in a few hotel beds but never stayed the night. I never spooned or cuddled.

Hell, I hadn’t ever realized how many women in this damn town I had fucked in the back room of this place until they all started asking for repeats. It actually made me shiver anytime I thought about it.

Kylie Burks. The only other woman I had ever had sex with more than three times, was standing in front of me. My eyes took her in. She had changed some, but she was still a beautiful woman. Not as beautiful as Maebh, but I certainly saw why I had no problems going back for more.

I hated Kylie. Hated that I had given her so much of me. Spent so much time with her. I wanted to forget every single moment I had ever been with her. Wanted to erase every second I’d been with any other woman.

I had run away like a scared little girl and that wasn't who I was. I'd find out the truth for meself and if Cord had cheated, I'd kick his ass. If he hadn't, I'd beg for him to forgive me for not trusting him and giving him a chance to explain.

“There isn't anything I wouldn't do for you, Maebh. I'm going to show you each and every day how much I love you. There has never been a single doubt in my mind that you and I don't belong together.”

“Every morning when I see the pink sky spread across the Texas hill country, I'm going to thank God for you. Every night when I look up at the stars I'm going to thank God for giving us another day together, and I'll pray for a million more.”

This Love (Cowboys and Angels, #6) by Kelly Elliott

Maebh and Cord had me falling in love with love. This Love was the beginning of the end for my romantic heart. Elliott explores the angst of new love and the sweetness of finding strength in allowing the vulnerabilities to shine through. The Playboy was brought to his knees by a beautiful heart, that opened his eyes to what his life was missing. True love. Love is not about perfection. Love is accepting a person for who they are, not who we want them to be. Through the heartache, humor and misunderstandings Kelly Elliott continues to bring a smile to my face and my heart.

3.5 Stars.

From the very beginning, Cord was one of the Parkers that I was most looking forward to (and typically when that happens, it ends up being the last book in the series... this time it was just second to last. I'll take it as a win ?)

Unfortunately, I was a little disappointed.

The story was good.

Of course, I adored all the characters.

But I just felt like some things just didn't work for me.

I think the main issue I had was the fact that Cord seemed to have a lot of panic attacks... and for random/odd/stupid (to me) reasons.

I still adore this series and I'll definitely be coming back for rereads.

This one just wasn't a favorite for me.

BUT with that bomb that was dropped in this book, I have a feeling that I'm going to have a SERIOUS love/hate relationship with the next (and final ?) book of this series!

Stacey (Total Book Addicts) says

This is the 6th book in the Cowboys and Angels series and I've fallen so in love with it. Every book that Kelly brings out in this series I fall in love with it!!!

There's still one more book to come out aswell!!!

I seriously couldnt help but love this book.

Cord and Maebh's story was just so damn perfect ?

Cord/Jokey Smurf. He made me laugh alot in the other books and he did in this one too. But he was also serious too. He had feelings for someone for the first time and didnt know what the hell to do.

Maebh she was the most upfront and sweetest character ever!! She wasnt afraid to tell Cord how she felt or what she wanted. I loved that about her. That kind of scared Cord a little.

I laughed loads, wanted to punch a certain someone, cried happy tears at the end and swooned so damn much.

Kelly yet again you've done another fantastic job!!!

Well done. I can't wait to read the final book!!! Xx
