Karyn says

This comic is cute with the flashback where they are discussing what the Shield is going to be while wearing tactical gear. Then for the actual debut they decide to change into turtlenecks, or tactlenecks for Archer fans. They replaced Ryback with.. Juice Robinson? for the first Triple Power Bomb.

This entire comic does a really good job of portraying Seth as the architect and Dean as the loose cannon. But they don't do a great job with Roman as the silent bad ass and muscle. He's whiny, he's constantly getting beat up by everyone, he's made into a joke by Triple H. But one can't fault the writers for accuracy, it's pretty much WWE booking.

I loved the mini story at the end with Kane being the most prolific Royal Rumble entrant, despite never winning. I'll always love Kane. I'm sad he won't be in the 2018 Rumble; he needs his elimination record back. Damn it, Roman.
