Good Stuff

This was an entertaining story with a few twist and turns .The writer keeps her foot on the gas and never let's up with the pace of the story.The storyline has been done before but we get a new look on some new players and it's just good.

Living for Love and Dying for Loyalty

The storyline is an interesting read about the different characters growing up in Chicago. King Rah and Markese unknowingly are involved with the same females. First there's Carmen Rodriguez with her ruthless family connections, so the question is the love of her life money...? Then there's hot-headed Markese who definitely loves both Trish and Aja for life or death. But It's all love for the families as they run the streets of Chi town. I think the southside/westside rivalries keep the drama going in this novel. Minus a few spelling errors, it's 3. Enjoy!

These characters gave me so much drama, lies, and secrets. This was a emotional roller-coaster fareal. I cannot stand how pathetic Carmen was though. I was shocked with Markese and his infidelity having a double life basically. I cannot wait to see how loyalty they have in the rest of the books.

Excellent read. No need to be a part two. The book ended just fine.

Revina says

Good

This book was good but some things just seemed unrealistic like them getting married at the same time. Good job though.

Living For Love and Dying For Loyalty

This was a very good read. I loved both crews and their loyalty. For a minute, I was concerned with how emotional and unstable they acted. Glad they got it together. Carmen was a surprise. Side chick at its worst. This book could have ended right here, but on to Part Two. Definitely recommended.

Banger! Markese and Rehmeek couldn't catch a break! I couldn't believe that Carmen was Markese side chick/ baby momma and Rehmeek ex-girlfriend that left him when he went to prison. It was messed up what happen to Trish by Montana too! I love how the girls all band together for Trish to get Montana! When they went to prison I thought everything was going to spiral instead found out the detective was Markese and Aja father! When all the crew got married it was like a fairytale! I'm too excited I can't wait to read part 2 now!

Good read was looking for a more dramatic ending though. Let me me to part 2 since we have happy endings I shouldn't always want drama right...lol Rahmeek was just released from prison, and settling down was the last thing on his mind, until he was met Aja. He puts the love that he has for Aja to the side, due to his beef with Markese. He pushes his woman away, and that's the worst thing that he could've ever done, because pushing her away is hurting the both of them.

Aja is definitely a force to be reckon with. Due to Aja's upbringing, she's not impressed with flashy cars, the fast lifestyle, money, or drugs doesn't faze her. She has a brother that would spoil her until no tomorrow, but she wants to make her brother proud, by making it on her own. Aja loves her family, but she wants to do her own thing. She falls hard for Rahmeek, but once again the beef is drawing a wedge between everyone. Aja then chooses love over everything, and she doesn't know if she made the right choice. She's pushed her brother farther away, and Rahmeek pushes her away. She's left with wondering what to do.

Trish loves Aja, because she's part of Markese, and Markese and Aja are all she knows since the age of 14. Markese is the love of Trish's life, and she knows that her man's heart is in the streets. However, when she finds out that her man is cheating, it breaks her heart, but to add insult to injury, her man has had 2 kids on her. She's overwhelmed with the infidelity, and tries to end her life. She then is there to put the pieces of the life back together.

Markese is good to his phamily, but he's not treating Trish like he knows he need to. Having to hide his kids from his woman, is starting to weigh a toll on him. He wants to break the news to Trish, but he doesn't know how, until Trish finds out on her own. Trish goes into hiding, and talks to someone that was supposed to be a mutual friend to both Trish and Markese. The mutual friend teams up with mother of Markese's children, and now tension is in the air. Markese, Rahmeek, Aja, and Trish takes you a roller-coaster ride on what it takes to be in love with a hustler.

I don't care Markese was arrogant and bogus. I really feel Trish could so better and should have cut her loses. Rah was wack for actions in the hospital and me and him would have had it out forget the situation. Carmen is a clown
