Asho says

This is the sort of book that my kids adore but that drives me crazy because it's basically a big advertisement masquerading as a book. My 3-year-old daughter (L) picked this out at the book fair at her brother's school and could not be convinced to pick something else with actual literary merit, so here we are. We read it two nights in a row. Her 6-year-old brother is surprisingly interested in it as well, which is bizarre because for all intents and purposes this is a catalog. It describes each cars' features, likes, and dislikes.

I will admit that some of the Cutie Cars genuinely are cute, and there were some clever puns in the descriptions, so this could be worse!

ETA June 2018: Having read this about a dozen times now, I'm upping the rating to 3 stars out of fairness to L, who just loves this book SO much. Those Cutie Cars are so appealing to her.
