Nurture (verb): 1. To give tender care and protection. 2. To encourage to grow, develop, thrive, and be successful.

This beautifully describes what God's daughters so desperately need. In this heartfelt work, Lisa explains how women of all ages must awaken and restore their capacity to give and receive nurture.

The need for this indelible force is far more urgent than we know. Is it possible we are too busy surviving to assure that the vulnerable among us thrive? Are we too guarded, wounded, and afraid to open our lives to the nurture of others? What can be done to reestablish this language of the feminine heart? It is time women are healed and empowered.

If you have never experienced nurture, this is your season. Lisa's stirring message shows you how to make these vital heart connections. We need each other's comfort and assurance as we define ourselves, find our voice, and begin to fulfill God's purpose on Earth.

In Lisa's own words: "There is such a resonance in my spirit . . . this is in fact our season to grow, develop, and thrive. Heaven is passionately and purposefully reconnecting with our wounded, war-torn earth and the people who inhabit her. In this season I believe the daughters of God will prove integral agents. Nurture is not expensive-it is expansive. The life of everyone enlarges when it is added. As this happens, we will cease to merely function-we will indeed flourish."

I absolutely loved this book. It's just what I need right now. I think my female pastor realised as much when she loaned it to me! I think this author has a magnificent message for women everywhere, that we are to nurture and be nurtured, to empower others and be empowered by God. To seek out our spiritual sisters, mothers and daughters. This is the true spirit of feminism to me.

Two or so pages in and I was really really not getting it. So I gave up. I give it two stars based on the little I read. It could be an unfair rating.

Vivisawesome says

My leader bought me this book last year for Christmas and I've been reading it so slow, it has taken me nearly a whole year to reach the last page.

I must admit, I was really glad I have finally finished this book- it wasn't all that interesting. Neither did I really understand the whole book.

There were some parts that just confused me so much that I've actually skipped them...

But then, maybe it's because of my age. Maybe I'm too immature to enjoy this book. Nevertheless, it won't my list of favourite books.

Molly says

I love every book Lisa Bevere has ever written, and love hearing her speak even more. This book is basically about loving other women, learning how to nurture and be a mother, sister, daughter, grandmother and friend in the kingdom of God.

Melinda Adair says

We used this for our ladies small group last spring. It started lots of good discussions. There were a couple chapters that didn't connect (theologically) but it was still nice to travel through with some of the girls.

Aimee says

I ran this course with our ladies life groups and what a journey! Women were released, encouraged and empowered to be who God created them to be. This book gives permission not only to be feminine, but to be uniquely individual. I love how this book values the generations and reminds us that we all matter, we all have something to offer. This book will feed your spirit and challenge you to nurture those around you.

Bethany says

Most of the book was pretty fluffy. The last chapter really brought it home, though.

My favorite take-away: (on whether to be a mentor or a mother)

Mentors tend to reproduce themselves, but mothers want more for their sons and daughters than they ever had themselves. (p. 118)

Roxanna Ramdhunee says

hi how do I read the books here. ...

Alexis Turner says

Most of this book was simple material that probably isn't news to most people, but still a good reminder.

I really enjoyed Chapter 5 entitled "Be True"... the gist of it can be felt in the following quotes from that chapter: "Great, now you are a daughter of the light! now here is a list of rules, memorize them well." - "you have just been moved from the inward leading to outward conformity." ... " The dynamic of revealed or uncovered light happens only when we are true to ourselves and are led by our hearts, not by some list of rules."

Shirley Burke says

I read this book when it first came out and found it very well written. It has a powerful and empowering message for women of all generations that is much needed in our world today. I highly recommend it in fact I am going to read it again and possibly start a book study group.

Elizabeth Fosson says

Really loved this book. The chapter on Mary and Elizabeth was great! Actually they were all great! I was afraid at first that this book was going in the direction of male bashing but it didn't! And who better to write that part of women and men looking at the world differently than a happily married mom of boys. Seriously great info in here!

Rebekah says

I would recommend this for all women. The book does a great job of talking to women at all age levels and calling us to Biblical standards of nurturing each other.

Lisa Gonzalez says

She is one of my favorites!! I have learned to be a better mother, wife, friend!!

Bonnie Garrett says

I made it 28 pages, then skimmed through the rest and found no reason to continue reading. Admittedly, there could be some value in this book. But any author that insists on calling me "daughter" and "beautiful one," over and over, cannot possibly expect to be taken seriously. Also, just because an author places Bible verses throughout the book, doesn't mean what she is saying is based on Biblical principles. Chapter 4 flat out tells you that she's displeased with how sisterhood is represented in the Bible, so handily, God tells her "The chapter of the daughters is being written right now. Tell My daughters to write their lives well." It's just too much.
