Technology has evolved and become a willing suitor to science as a new vacation program is unleashed which enables participants to experience alternative lifestyles and bodies for a short space of time. The vacation package on offer allows holiday makers to live vicariously through the eyes and physical presence of another as your body is stored and hidden away from the world inside a Body Preservation Dormitory.

The simulations of the Mindplant world promise to entertain you and provide you with your heart's desires as you engage in your fantasy vacation and the various adventures it contains without consequences or ramifications. Two strangers lives however quickly become intertwined as they start to explore their vacations, attractions and then are even pitted against each other.

Startling revelations are uncovered as they start to realize that their minds are trapped inside not only their vacations but also inside the simulated bodies and world they once enjoyed, which rapidly becomes the noose around their necks. The pleasures Mindplant once offered them rapidly become horrors as they are hunted down by a program named Visual, transformative killers called Exterminators and spies called Watchers. The vacationers then have to attempt to find a way to escape; the Mindplant vacation, Barbelo the founder and pending death.

Glitches Series:

The Glitches series explores the possible facilitation of technology when 'the end justifies the means' is applied to technological developments and their implementation by human beings and examines how that can result in both negative and positive outcomes.
