Sally says

prequel to the novels

short story prequel to the YA novels explaining how Ethan gets involved at council level at age 18. sci fi

Rochelle says

Black Room pulled me in and I didn't want to stop reading. I was so caught up that when the story ended I was surprised and trying to click through to the next pages but there weren't any. Ethan's story was fascinating and I'd love to read more about him and his past.

Cat90210 says

i loved how we got to see Ethans view of Affinity when he got taken in, and I loved how we got to see how he came upon the deactivation program. all up I loved it... Scar Tissue here I come!!

Rou Min says

Someone HAND ME STRAY NOW!!!

Also I mention in my SPARK review that the story reminds me of the game Beyond Two Souls(one of my fav games for narrative but has crappy controls), this kinda takes it to another level.

Anyway looking forward to seeing how this ties in with the main story

Steph Cuthbert says

I love Ethan. I want a whole series based on him and Miriam. Also, just quietly, I live for these short stories. They are killer on the description front.

Sass says

Need. Stray. NOW.

Edited to add: more coherently, Rachael's writing just keeps on getting stronger and stronger, and I'm so excited to see where she takes the series next.

Lily says

OH MY GOODNESS RACHAEL CRAW YOU ARE THE QUEEN.

I'm reading these little novellas (novelette? short story? I dunno) to tide me over until Shield is released and I've got to say, this is such a dark and unnerving look into Ethan's experience with the questionable ethics of the Affinity Project. It is a perfect companion piece for fans of the Spark trilogy.

Craw has this amazing ability to create tension and unease in her writing, and the world building in this series is so powerfully realistic and freaking AWESOME! I just love the concept behind these books, from secret government agencies to genetically engineered super soldiers, it is just so deliciously intriguing. Is it wrong that I just want more of the darker, evil, manipulative and controlling side of the Affinity Project?

Because I so do.

Can I please have Shield now thanks?
