Hunting Under Covers Aimee Brissay , Kaje Harper , Kathleen Hayes , Shayla Mist , M.E. Sanford , J. Vaughn

This free ebook is a collection of stories about men falling love, struggling with their own or other's views of their orientation, and having some damn interesting adventures. It is a product of the Goodreads M/M Romance Group Scavenger Hunt challenge and features original stories from some excellent authors.

The Scavenger Hunt challenge is an event where readers find books that fit a criterion (like having a green cover or a title starting with "D") and then find specific items within the pages of these books to add up to as many points as possible (for example, "twin bed" = +2 points). This challenge was a helluva lotta, fun and so we thought we share by creating the ultimate 2013 Goodreads Scavenger Hunt book.

This book was lovingly put together as a baby gift for Katie, our tireless leader, who recently had her first baby and is probably just now realizing what "busy mom" really means. Congratulations Katie!

We've listed the items you need to find in the front of the book. Happy Hunting (Under Covers).

Publisher's Note: This book is intended for adult audiences. It contains sexually explicit scenes between two or more men, violence, and language which may be considered offensive by some readers.

You know, it's not every day a wonderful group of people put together an anthology dedicated to you. This effort is so appreciated and I loved every word. I've so enjoyed working on these challenges and seeing so many of you enjoy them. Thanks to all of you for thinking of me and making the challenges as fun and exciting as they are. :)

This Review Only For Kaje Harper's "Changes Coming Down: 3 stars

When Mandy suggested this for my personal M/M/M challenge, I thought, heck, one of my favorite authors writing in one of my least favorite genres. At least it should balanced thing out, right?

Yep, and that was exactly what happened here.

What I Liked:

+ The fact that Casey, Scott, and Will were in established relationship. I felt their relationship was very mature. No internal drama. They complete each other with their different personalities. I was surprised that the younger Scott sometimes took a more level-headed action towards the older guys. It was really nice.

+ Nobody forced anybody else to come out of the closet. Yep, all three men started this book in the closet. It was their choice and they all had different reasons. Casey was the Sheriff, Will was the Cowboy, and Scott was a big-and-upcoming hockey player. All had stakes if they came out. But when changes came to them, nobody forcing anybody else to came out with them. Again, VERY mature relationship. I approve!

What I Felt MEH About:

+ Unfortunately, I though the mystery was a bit underwhelming. It was sometimes overshadowed with other 'changes' in their life ... the election for Casey, or the death of the surrogate parents for Will. Plus whether they should come out or not. It just didn't have the punch I wanted in a mystery. I also didn't find the one who did it as surprising (or much of twist). Personally, for me, it became rather humdrum mystery.

+ The sex scenes... again, I blamed my brain for this. Sometimes I hated my brain for compartmentalizing. If I read those porn/erotica fiction or even non-con/dub-con, I was fine with > 2 person. But labelled it romance, or if approach it as romance, it just didn't work. Sigh. MY ISSUE not yours.

In the end, this got 3-stars from me. Still a good one from Kaje but it fell to my 'okay' category. I guess because I had no doubt about the guys -- they were solid after all -- I expected more in the mystery (rather than the romance) but as I said above, the mystery was sadly lacking the punch.

Personal MMM Challenge March 2014: story #3

Free collection

Living Out the Fantasy, Aimee Brissay. Very short, pretty good.

Thank God for Games Saga, Sayla Mist. The familiar and annoying trope of two people who assume and don't communicate, but not bad.

Changes Coming Down, Kaje Harper. Good, of course. M/M/M. Mucho angst crammed into 60,000 words.

A Capricorn Tale, M.E. Sanford. Sci-fi, mpreg, humans and aliens. Kind of strange-but-not-bad.

Pierced, J. Vaughn. Not good. A cliched hero/victim hurt/comfort story marred by some extremely poor word choices. Our MC refers to a female police officer as a "dyke cop" and a "butch cop"--he's dealing with the police btw because his boyfriend was beaten and raped--and people are mad at the attackers for doing "something so asinine".

Demons, Time Travel and Bacon, various authors - didn't read it.

There are Worse Things, Katies Crewman. At least two stories mashed together here, maybe more, but pretty well done. College roommates, D/s, time travel, Serious bad stuff -- or not?!

Home, Kathleen Hayes. More time travel! And highlanders! A combination as classic as bacon and eggs.

New free anthology, including a new 64k m/m/m story by Kaje Harper. Can be grabbed for free from Smashwords.

Mercedes says

Only read Changes Coming Down by Kaje Harper.

This is an excellent MMM story by Kaje. I am Not saying this story is in bad company in this anthology but at 65k word count it should stand alone on its own. Not only because of the word count but also because of the quality of it.

A follow up would be great or another MMM story by Kaje would be welcomed.

Heller says

I'll check the other stories in the anthology later but I wanted to have a look at the Harper. Loved it.

Changes Coming Down by Kaje Harper 4 Stars

Menage. Wow. This was a fantastic read. A cop, a cowboy, and a hockey player. Did I mention this was free? One of the better menage stories I've read in quite a while.

Living Out the Fantasy by Aimee Brissay

This was a cute short story but entirely too short for my liking. I was just getting into it and it ended. So sad.

Thanks God for Games Saga by Shayla Mist

This was an okay story. I liked the two main characters. I thought they suffered from a lack of communication though. So many problems could have been solved by talking to each other and the recruiter for Games Saga.

Changes Coming Down by Kaje Harper

I really liked this story. I loved that it had some suspense and was a ménage. It got me that three people, a cop, a rancher, and a hockey player could get together. You wouldn't think they would work out, but they do. The saddest part of the book was the beginning. I don't want to say what happens, but it sets the stage for every other event.

A Capricorn Tale by ME Sanford

This was a cute story. I just so wished it was a little longer. I loved the way the world was built and the differences between the species of humanoids.

Pierced by J Vaughn

This was probably my favorite story in the entire book. I loved how Paul was willing to stand up for Kyle and risk his college life as he knew it. I also love that Kyle was able to make his own stand and not let someone get away with a crime.

Demons, Time Travel and Bacon, Oh My! by Various

I liked the concept of this where a bunch of people took turns writing the story. There were times I could tell that a different person was writing, but for the most part it flowed nicely.

There Are Worse Things by Katies Crewman

This story was interesting. I thought it was starting like an ordinary story and thought I could basically guess the plot. I was so wrong. (view spoiler) I really loved the twist.

Home by Kathleen Hayes

This story was pretty good. The only thing that bothered me was that Angus took traveling into the future so easily. I would think someone entering a different time period would be a lot more amazed at everything. The story was cute though.

Overall, I had fun reading the entire book. The stories were well written and entertaining. I still have a hard time with really short stories. That is probably the biggest drawback for me in reading this. I just have a lot harder time getting into the stories when I know they will be ending quickly. This doesn't mean that the writing was bad. It wasn't. Everyone did great. Thanks for all the hard work and for letting it be downloaded for free.

Free collection of stories inspired by the Goodreads M/M Romance Group Scavenger Hunt Challenge!

Living Out the Fantasy*, Aimee Brissay

Very short story about a man alone in Vegas and missing his boyfriend when he unexpectedly gets a fantasy fulfilled. It was nice but a bit too short for me to be really pulled in.

Thank God for Games Saga*, Shayla Mist

Cute story about an established couple that runs into trouble when one of them gets offered his dream job out of town. I felt like the issues they ran into in this story were really realistic for lots of couples. Their problems could have been easily solved by better communication, but that didn't really bother me here since it was fairly short and I liked both characters.

Changes Coming Down*, Kaje Harper

Really good menage story about a rancher, sheriff, and hockey player. This grabbed me right from the beginning and I was really invested in both the characters and the plot. I thought it dragged a tiny bit in the middle after (view spoiler) was resolved, but that might be due to my own personal tendency to get a bit bored during sex scenes. The story made me laugh and made me cry and I would totally read more about these characters.

A Capricorn Tale*, M.E. Sanford

I liked this one a lot, although it is really hard to describe. There's sea/land creatures with scales and humans arriving via a big disaster and I'm not entirely sure how some of the events happened. But I was totally willing to roll with it because it was so interesting and different.

Pierced*, J. Vaughn

I liked this one a lot too. The beginning was a bit sad and rage inducing, but everything was happy and wonderful by the end. Really liked Paul and Kyle and the college setting.

Demons, Time Travel and Bacon, Oh My!*, Shelby, Marc, Raganna, Filipa, K., Astrid, Eepa, Danielle, Susan, Amanda, Pamela Su, Brandilyn, Teresa, Fehu, Jamie, Kaje, and Jay

This was super cute and funny! Managed to pack in just about everything you could ever want in a book and make sense while doing it!

There Are Worse Things*, Katies Crewman

I liked the plot of this one, but I thought the sex scene in the middle derailed the story a bit.

Home, Kathleen Hayes

Another cute story. I always think time travel from the past to the present is pretty entertaining.

Poems by the Scavenger Hunt Teams

I am really impressed by these! Poetry is hard!

The Scavenger Hunt point list:

(view spoiler)

In the spoiler tag because it takes up a lot of space.

On the whole this anthology was really fun and creative. I was really impressed with the way all the scavenger hunt items were woven into the stories. As with most anthologies, there were some parts I liked more than others, but the whole thing was a very entertaining read.

Teresa says

Ok. So I am a little bit biased as I was part of this project. That being said, there is true talent and excellent entertainment under these covers! Kaje Harper's story "Changes Coming Down" was truly wonderful and my favourite of them all. I would love to read more of her men and their ranch.

That being said, I also loved Paul's care for Kyle in J Vaughn's "Pierced", the paranormal twist in Katies Crewman's friends to lovers story, "There are Worse Things", the Scottish Highlander's awe in Kathleen Hayes' "Home", Rich's final choice in Shayla Mist's "Thank God for Games Saga", the sexy interlude in Aimee Brissay's "Living Out the Fantasy", the creativeness in ME Sanford's "A Capricorn Tale", and last but not least, the craziness of "Demons, Time Travel, and Bacon, Oh My!".

Highly recommend for some m/m loving and laughter as well as some feels!

Mandy*reads obsessively* says

Yay! Kaje Harper has a m/m/m story in this free antho!

I'm doing a happy dance right now!

It's totally up next! :)

Changes Coming Down By Kaje Harper

I swear, Kaje can write.

I love, love, LOVE my ménage stories and this one is FREE, AWESOME and LONG (I don't think Kaje is physically capable of a short story! LOL, THANK GOODNESS)

We have Will (rugged, laid back cowboy) Scott (younger sexy NHL player and I think the glue in this mmm sandwich) and Casey (the ex marine, sheriff and sort of gruff and grumpy sweetie)

This story covers a lot and I mean a lot of subjects. Some of them heavier than others, coming out or not coming out, the repercussion and the benefits. Loving not just one other person but two, difficult jobs, different jobs and life dreams and making some tough decisions.

I really was able to sink in to this relationship, each man was unique and individual, there was mystery and intrigue, family drama and sad back stories, crime and passion and some really hot sex.

I really really hope she continues this story at some point because even with about 65000 words, I was NOT ready to let them go.

Thank you Kaje for another wonderful story.

This one's worth reading solely for the Kaje Harper story in the middle.

Kaetrin says

I have only read the Kaje Harper story at this point. It's a well done m/m/m menage story about a cowboy and sheriff and an ice hockey pro (sounds like the beginning of a joke right? "three guys walk into a bar..."?). I liked how the dynamic played out for all three of them and on the one hand, I liked that it was a substantial story. But I thought it kind of fizzled a bit toward the end, maybe it was a bit too long or it tried to do too much. I can't really complain. The anthology is free and I did enjoy the story. I count it as a win.

Still love these three.

Original review

This was wonderful. MMM is my fave and I've never read about an already established throuple before. This was just so satisfying on every level. Compatibility. Communication. Heat. And a bit of mystery as well.

It was so so so good.

Shannon says

I was so pleasantly surprised by the quality of these stories. I knew we had some talented people around here but I just wasn't expecting to be so entertained. I really loved all of these stories but will confess that "Pierced" was my favorite. I'm a sucker for an abused boy. Not to mention Kaje's menage story. Oh Yum! Just and all around fun read.
