This is my favorite Grace Livingston Hill book! It's set during WWII and is about a young woman, her struggling family, an elderly woman, and, of course, a young man. All of her books are pure and innocent, but this one has such beautiful imagery! The street of the city is the frozen river that she ice skates to and from work on each day.

I took it to camp with me and read it to my cabin of 9th grade girls. I didn't have time to finish it, though, so they all wanted her name so they could find the book themselves and read it, including my college age co-counselor! I actually discovered Grace Livingston Hill when I was chasing toddlers around as a young mom. I just love the faith and family perspective her books have!

Enjoyed this book

I got hooked on reading by reading Grace Livingston Hill books from school library. And I still enjoy her books . Some I have read over and over.

Another wonderful book!

This book is a sweet love story. The main characters are very likeable. I enjoy the way the author weaves in faith and the love of our Saviour. If you are a romantic at heart, you will enjoy this book.

It's war time and the 5th elements plans are foiled but a young woman and her family moving into the house they were using. She meets a young man and their loves change

Pamela Shropshire says

This book by GLH is set (and was written) during WW2, which is a particularly favorite setting of mine. Frannie is a young woman from a good family that fell on hard times when the father became ill, lost his business and then died. They have recently moved to a new city, into a small house on "the wrong side of the river" and Frannie has gone to work in a defense plant. When her mother collapses, some new people enter their lives that are to have a lasting impact on the family. This includes a young man named Valliant Willoughby (fortunately a more honorable Willoughby than Jane Austen's) who begins to take Frannie out - to church and Bible studies.

Of course, like all of GLH's books, there's quite a bit of Biblical and Christianity bits. This one also includes stuff about the war and defense work and SPIES. Great stuff. Lots of period details. Very enjoyable.

Another good Christian book

This isn't my favorite of Grace Livingston Hill's books but it's very good. Set in the time of war when every citizen was helping the war effort. Something that likely wouldn't happen today.

Good Christian Reading

I have loved Grace Livingston Hill books since m teenage years. Thought I had read them all but I did not remember this one. I loved the fact ,that true to the form of her books,there were those coming to Christ. I loved that with this one both of the love birds were saved at the same time.

Marci McEntyre says

Sweet and endearing love story. Also, reflects how God protects and guides those who love Him and trust His Word

Courtney says

This novel, like so many others, has failed to grab and captivate my attention. There are many different times that I can pick up a novel and cannot finish it at that time; however, I might be able to return to it at a later date. This is one of those, who knows, maybe next time it will be a game changer.

The a street of the city

Soothing to a dry soul in search of God!

The Street of the City is a nice romantic novel set during the 1900s before the second world war took place. This novel highlights the meaning of God and His works in our life by the two lovely characters who drastically fall in love at the end.
